March 2022 No. 37 Studying Resources for Students

LUCK OF THE STUDENT!

Hello CSUDH students! We hope you have been doing well, for some students' first exams are just around the corner while for others either you just finished your first exams or have midterms and assignments looming ahead. Whichever your case may be, we wish you all the good luck and what better time than in March! March is synonymous with St. Patrick's day, a day full of pots of gold (sadly fictitious), lots of green, and luck! But we know that our amazing students don't just rely on "luck" to pass their exams. Studying is one of the main key components required to pass your classes, but we also know that sometimes that is not the easiest task to complete. Different people have different studying methods they have developed for years which work for them, and while some strategies may work for some individuals that is not the case for everyone. Some individuals are visual learners, others may find flash cards are extremely helpful while other students rely solely on their class notes or study guides. Whatever your studying style may be or whether you're still trying to find your studying groove we want to help! Be sure to check out the rest of our newsletter for resources on and off campus, on and off campus fun activities for our students. Read about our students of the month nominees and alumni, and get to know our new and current staff! We are currently open and are offering our students snacks, scantrons, printing service as well study areas. Pay us a visit on the 4th floor of the Library. Have an amazing month and we'll see you in next month's newsletter issue!

SCHOLAR OF THE MONTH

All of our scholars are amazing, but Maria Gomez just went above and beyond this month. Click below to read more about Maria Gomez
